PCTI Presents First Ever Vocal Technique/Instrumental Concert

Wayne, NJ – FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – On April 29th, members of Passaic County Technical Institute’s (PCTI) Vocal Technique and Instrumental Music program performed the first ever spring concert, entitled No Place I’d Rather Be. The theme, in part, reflected on PCTI’s School of Performing Arts new Vocal Technique program.

Jose Martinez, PCTI’s first multi-talented Vocal Instructor said, “I began writing the curriculum and immediately auditioned my freshman class. PCTI is the greatest place to be. There’s an unbelievable amount of support for the Arts from the school’s Superintendent Diana C. Lobosco and Principal Dr. Michael Parent.”

Instrumental Music Instructors Nelson Mendez and James Dalton conducted a night of enchantment with spirited scores, allowing their students to showcase their outstanding talents.

The show also honored beloved PCTI Instructor, Tom Woods, who recently passed away. Members of the Vocal Technique program dedicated their final song “Wind Beneath My Wings,” which was accompanied by a video presentation, to his inspiring memory.

PCTI’s Vocal Technique students perform at the first annual spring concert.
